DRESS FASHIONS.

Antumn Styles Reported from France What Seen at Dieppe and Heard Through the Siege of Paris-What is Worn and What is Expected-New Jackets, New Hats, lew Fringes and Elegant Colors-Robes and Tunies.

Mone o your readers would ever have believed in reinarytimes that male attire would again go back to Byrdic loose neckties, limp collars and the misery taking styles. But it is so at all the seaside exclusic privilege of blonde mermaids. This revival of sentimentalism has been growing up ever ince the Prussian army gave signs o comin on for a dip to the Norman coasts, and it we lok with an unprejudiced eye at the map of Prage we must come to the conclusion that these pictresque coasts, the last refuge of fashion, will rear offer anto the enemy the most exceptional secontaining, the freshest shrimps and most peaceful cojemplation of fugitives in every possible cos-ince. No wonder, then, that the male portion of the localities should look Byronic. Truly, there re drawbacks, and among them the raw recruits of he raw National Guard, also the ladies' hideous cach and the weak sex spinshing in the water, or clothing a bronze faced bather's hands while she imps up and down in prayful frelic, I thought, as considered both yesterday, that such sights would prove too much for the enemy, for two reasons.

Firstly-The recruits come to drill with their guns and their dogs. When the order is simply "shoulder arms" there is not much to complain of—the dogs wag their tails and the men do not always poke their bayonets in their next neighbor's head; it is when order is given "armes terre," and the guns come down on the dogs' tails or neighbors' corns that the speciacle and sounds become tragic. A kind of wall from the quadrupeds and shrick from the sipeds, mingling with the roll of French r's (ever expressive of swearing) and mixed with the crash of he ocean, unite in one discordant easemble which to be called excruciating is a mild form of speech.

Secondly-There are no young ladies left at large mywhere this season. They have all been packed off out of the way of the "barbarous hordes," and off out of the way of the "barbarous hordes," and it is well known that elderly ladies who bathe will never trus, themselves to a bather.

They run out of their so-called "bathing machines" (not their costumes, but those small booths with pegs inside on waith bang their paniers and chignons) all along planks to preserve their feet from the smalles, and this run is rather fantastic than otherwise; but when the first dip has caused so many varied figures to disclose their outlines, and some either choke because they have incantiously swallowed a whole gulp of sea water, or sneeze or have to olink thi the sait is one of their eyes, I mannam there is more of nature than grace in such actuales.

I soon discovered that these were not the sole disadvantages of bleppe while awaiting the arrival of Vespetro's yacht. There came a shoul of Russian princesses and the ex-noblesse, from Versailles, by way of Dreux and Rouen. They came panising to the Casino in their emigré headdresses and with quantities of powder on their faces. They were but migratory brids, but their correct Parisian atture was a blow to my heart; it reminded me of the drive in the Bois and of the boulevards. Of course at those gay beauties had nad to quit, and were going to Brighton, Toriquay and other lashing they were the latest French styles and are sure to create a sensation. Lavender was ene of the favored colors, trimmed with black or garnet velvet and white muslin plaitings.

trimined with black or garnet velvet and white muslin plaitings.

The weather being still admirably fine, and the atmosphere warm, bodices were frilled round the epering in front with ruffs, snowy muslin, deep Valenciennes and Flemish lace.

The "free shooter's jacket" also appeared. It is nothing but the well known polonaise blouse of cashinere, worn as a blouse and tunic in one, somewhat full behind under the waist belt. It was also made of ceru, and both edged and mounted with eera lace.

made of coru, and both edged and mounted with corulace.

The fille du regiment jacket is another of the winter shadows cast before, for are the fair not all going to be leignments Cocklern? It is blue cloth, and sits half loosely in front, disclosing a vest underneath, but it as tight in the back, and there are little square basquines, lined with scarlet, which relieve the warlike appearance of this buttle piece.
All other jackets were richly braided with black, so richly and elaborately that a coat looks like Oriental arabesque. Lace insertion, both white and ecru, was worn between basds of slik and was sewn round flounces of silk, exactly as this trimaing has been worn on lawn and muslin all summer. Ecru lace and gold chestnut silk are very pretty in this

round these Liamas is woot, white and black fierce, or Thibet fringe.

Tyrolese hats will fight this war out; silver daggers have to keep them on through thick and thin—chignons. I rather admired a white feit one with a scarlet feather, which was pointed with black and tipped ditto all round.

Orepe de chine will also continue on the seat of war with marginal feature, and role the scart of war with marginal feature.

scariet feather, which was pointed with black and tipped ditto all round.

Orape de chine will also continue on the seat of war with marabout fringe, and rule thus over blue, cerise and maize under petiticoats.

The peony ball rose has just entered, likewise, on the field. It is a white mustin dress, mada with a train and flounce, above which a thick ruche of peony pink sifk, cut out in the petal shape and drawn together so as to form a dower neading to the flounce. There are three white muslin pamers behind; to this and between each the petal-leafed sik ends. The same ruche round the bedice.

The feather-ruche roue is also white muslin, with blue sik threaded out to form a plame, and drawn together in ruche for trimmings.

I noticed that times are no longer so much worn separately above under petiticoats; but the skirts are generally very much flounced, puffed or frilled, and the bodices are made with basques to correspond in every possible cut and shape. It is true to remark that the rage of detarroned Paris tailors appears to have vented itself on ladies' basques, so much stanked are they.

Then some jackets have short fronts and long backs, others long fronts and scarcely any backs; some have two fronts, one underneath, like a wanstoma much puffed down and a tait over h besides. These vagaries will not last and it would be a pity to invest in them.

Coat shaped casaques will. They must, however, have a masculine pocket, with flaps, a lace jabot and lace ruffes to fall over the wrist. I can only account for these large pockets in the following way. I believe it is a bit of Fashion's wit at the expense of Prussian "requisitions," and the lace means how dainly the term want dresses up "plunder;" but that is neither here nor there: just now it is everywhere.

The way we got to Tréport from Dieppe was not pense of Prusham "requisitions," and the lace means how dainty the term which dresses up "plunder;" but that is neither here nor there; just now it is everywhere.

The way we got to Tréport from Dieppe was not by the yacht at all. I am sorry to say all the pitots and sailing men are recruits, and, so Eliano's great disappointment, she has had to give up our original idea of cruising between thave and Dankira.

We got to Tréport by a stage coach, and on the top of a stage coach too, and we had to reach this top by means of a ladder. Now Eliane had picked up frouirou at Thers and brought her back to Dieppe for me to chaperone mail we came across the old dowager Comtesse, who has fed from one spot to another, hoping to rin away from a political regime that she says is not comme it fam. Wherever she hopes to find one that is remains a mystery with Fronfrou. To see her meanwhile thus left to roam on the top of that stage coach ladder was a sight never to be forgotten, with her pretty kid top boots and frilled skirts fluilling so perversely that she was twice held a captive. We were favored with the front seats behind cocher, and even pensive Eliane laughed when we were all packed in under a back teather roof such as singgage vans are covered with, and Fronfrou called our places "the first tier row." Nover was a word more graphle. We had a splendid scene before us, and the stage was rural Normandy. Hurral for stage coaches and four-in-hand, through woods and country roads, through poppy fields and orchard roads, through thatched vitages and vineciad hamlets! Our cocher was a country wit besides—a hoary man, in a blue smockfrock and fur cap, "who had been twenty years on the road. Monsieur;" and "who had ridden down five rival coaches, Monsieur," Every now and then ke would facetiously announce the advance of Prussian outposts in the distance, and at each hall be would give the assembled peasantry the latest war news, according to the Ruben paper. Out came the villagers to their doors, out struggled those fabulious No

Catharine appeared to be in basic to marry, but John, who was a carpenter, being out of employment and having hale or no money, seemed desirous of postponing the nuptials till rortune favored him. FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

SATURDAY, Oct. 22-6 P. M. All the markets to-day were strong except at the Stock Exchange.

ANOTHER "SQUEEZE" IN GOLD.

The holders of gold locked up a million of gold to-day, and so compelled a further advance in the rates for borrowing. The lowest rate was one-eighth per cent for the use of gold to Monday, all engagements being for the intervening two days. The "short" interest had been largely increased yesterday by the anticipated payment of the November coin interest on the public debt. Hence the de-mand became very sharp when it was announced made out before the 26th inst, and that the prepay ment of the coupons could not commence before the 28th or 29th inst. During the board the rate ranged as high as 11-32, or nearly three-eignths per cent. A few minutes after three o'clock a firm who had not received their gold borrowed cash gold for the account of the selier and paid & per cent for the amount, about $70,000. This was an "under the rule" transaction and the rule exceptional. After the board borrowers prepared for Monday's business, and paid % and % per cent for the use of gold on that day. The premium fluctuated only three-eighths per cent in face of this stringency, the advance being from 112% to 113. The course of the market

THE BANK STATEMENT.

The weekly statement of the associated banks was a surprise to the street on account of its very favorable features. The specie item shows an increase, tion of the five per cents of 1871, the repatement of a portion of the November interest and the sale of gold by the government the past week supplied the street with more specie than was paid into the Sun-Treasury for customs. The legal tenders also exhibit a surprising increase, due to the fact that the West and South, having already bought their dry goods before moving their crops, are paying their debts to the mer-chants in this city, thereby giving us the benefit of any currency movement with the interior. The total reserve has increased $2,201,938, and the liabilities $1,633,500, so that the surplus reserve has been augmented by the sum of $1,702,280. The statement corresponds with its predecessor as follows:-

The banks now hold $8,814,921 in excess of the reserve required by law.

MONEY BASY. The money market was easy at five to six per cent on stocks and four to five per cent on government collaterals. Pive per cent was, however, the generai rate on all classes of securities. Prime commercial paper was quoted seven to eight and a haif per cent discount.

Foreign exchange was dull after the steamers and unsettled by the high rates for gold.
